Message from Renate

Hello, how have you been?

Lately there has been a lot of phone calls to do with leaks!

Leaking shower bases, leaking pipes, leaking taps & toilets

There is something I have noticed & I am going to give you a tip that will save you some money.

Some people just look at damp patches on the wall & hope it is nothing & hope it will go away. This is not the best way to go about it because the longer water can just merrily go where it wants, the larger the amount of damage it can cause. Water is sneaky like that.

I went to an elderly lady's house once to quote on a leaking shower base. As I got closer to the shower she said to me – be careful you don't fall thru the floor dear. . . & with my next step the floor started giving way & she had me by the scruff of the neck . . . well you get the picture. I was a bit surprised – the lady wasn't - she knew she had put it off far too long.

The best way I know to reduce the damage where water is concerned is to get a specialist in at the time you notice wet patches appear. Leaking pipes & leaking shower bases have similar symptoms; get a leak specialist out to look at it.

All the best,

Renate

Beautiful Bathrooms

Success Story

A happy customer recently told me that he could hardly believe smoothness with which the bathroom renovation moved along. Project coordinator Pat was born to be a leader – he kept everything moving at a timely pace & all the men showed up when he said they would. The tradesmen from your team were all great to have around; they were efficient & friendly. I actually miss not having them around now that the work is done. We enjoyed the whole process of having our bathroom renovated with Tradeworks.

Renate's Tip's

I am going to give you a tip now which I hope may save you money one day.

I had a customer ring me the other day in a desperate panic. She had been out walking the dog and when she got back . . . she noticed her toilet started leaking and had flooded the toilet floor and most of the corridor. She rang Tradeworks desperate for someone to fix her problem.

It was in the middle of a long weekend and most of my tradesmen were away with their families. I told her to turn the tap off that was beside the toilet. She did that and the water immediately stopped gushing out from behind the toilet. I then asked her did she prefer to wait till Monday as the week day rates were less than the weekend emergency rates. She said she would love to wait till Monday but she needed her toilet as it was the only one in the house.

I asked her did she have a bucket . . . she said she did . . . I asked her to fill it to a level with water so she could comfortably lift it off the ground and pour the water into the toilet.

I explained to her she could use the toilet as normal and instead of flushing all she had to do was pour water into the toilet bowl, from the bucket which was like flushing the toilet. Your normal toilet flush uses 6 to 9 litres of water.

This way she could wait till Monday and pay normal daily rates instead of weekend emergency rates.

She was thrilled about that. I hope that this tip might help you Or one of your family one day if you should have an emergency involving your toilet after hours.

Then you can ring Tradeworks during the week and pay normal Day rate.
